From: Irene and JP Williams, a.k.a. The Blonde, The Blind respectively
Re: Williams' Self-imposed Guidelines for Personal Information Dissemination (PID)

Effective immediately, we will adhere to the following self-imposed guidelines regarding the specified items/events that might lead to PID. Please note that the content of our Selective Surf Option (SSO) site, blondeleadingblind.com, is classified separately as it is voluntary in nature and, thus, is not subject to these rules.

(1) Vacation photos:

We reserve the right to send vacation photos, promising never to send in excess of 4 email-embedded images to encapsulate a particularly interesting trip.

(2) Christmas newsletters:

We vow not, opting instead for regular personal contact with interested parties throughout the year, supplemented by content on our website.

(3) Christmas cards with photos:

We reserve the right to send photo-inclusive cards, and we guarantee your right to guilt-free disposal of cards at a juncture deemed appropriate by you.

(4) Event/gig invitations:

We reserve the right to send selective announcements via email based on size and importance of occurrence.

(5) Child/Pet Photos:

Though presently childless, we do have an immensely adorable Chihuahua. We reserve the right to share photos of the canine and any future offspring at will with anyone with whom we share a bloodline. For those of you not sharing a bloodline, we will use great restraint in the emailing of photos or anecdotes we find particularly heartwarming, funny or noteworthy.

These guidelines need not be reciprocal. We invite your abundant and amusing emails, letters, phone calls and telepathic messages regarding personal travels, activities/growth of offspring, career changes/advancements, event announcements/invitations.
